Who administers this assessment?

Trinity Advocacy Group staff who have completed MoCA certification.

Does the screening diagnose conditions like Dementia?

The MoCA test is designed to detect changes in cognitive functions, not diagnose. As well, Trinity Advocacy Group staff are MoCA-certified, but are not physicians. The screening our staff uses is a sensitive tool that detects cognitive functions.

What is done with the results?

Results are given to the individual being screened. It is up to that individual whether they share the results with their family members or physicians. Trinity Advocacy Group staff review next steps with the individual being screened.

Who should have this screening?

Adults 18+ who worry about their cognitive function (i.e. memory, reasoning).
